

INDIAN SOCIETY FOR TECHNICAL EDUCATION

The Indian Society for Technical Education (ISTE) is a national, professional, and non-profit organization registered under the Indian Societies Registration Act of 1860. It was initially established in 1941 as the Association of Principals of Technical Institutions (APTI) and was later reconstituted as ISTE in 1968 to broaden its scope and activities in promoting technical education across the country.

ISTE functions through an Executive Council at the national level and has a widespread institutional and individual presence. The society comprises more than 97,000 technical teacher members, over 566,000 student members, and more than 2,300 institutional members, including premier institutions such as the Indian Institutes of Technology (IITs), the Indian Institute of Science (IISc), and the National Institutes of Technology (NITs). Additionally, ISTE has established over 1,100 faculty chapters and 1,200 student chapters across India, reflecting its extensive outreach and engagement.

The primary objective of ISTE is to contribute to the development and production of highly qualified professional engineers and technicians to meet the demands of industry and other sectors. As the only national organization representing educators in the field of engineering and technology, ISTE plays a significant role in supporting various initiatives and missions of the Government of India.

Furthermore, ISTE collaborates closely with key governmental bodies such as the Ministry of Human Resource Development (MHRD), the Department of Science and Technology (DST), and various state governments in organizing and implementing programs related to technical education, faculty development, and curriculum enhancement.
